Blood Poison
THE BANE OF HUMAN LIFE,
Driven Out of the System by the Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I was a great sufferer from a most persistent blood disease, none of the various medicines I took being of any help whatever. Hoping that change of climate would benefit me, I went to Cuba, to Florida, and then to Saratoga Springs, where I remained some time drinking the waters. But all was no use. At last, being advised by several friends to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I began taking it, and very soon favorable results were manifest. To-day I consider myself a perfectly healthy man, with a good appetite and not the least trace of my former complaint. To all my friends, and especially young men like myself, I recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla, if in need of a perfectly reliable blood-purifier." — JOSE A. ESCOBAR, proprietor Hotel Victoria, Key West, Fla.; residence, 352 W. 16th St., New York.

"POOR FELLOW."

"Cholly" Writes About the Late Ward McAllister, Who Created "the 400."

I was present at a gay dance on Thursday evening when the news of Ward McAllister's death was brought in.

It was entirely unexpected, because nobody knew that he was ill, yet it created no sensation whatever.

Mr. McAllister was a creation of the newspapers. They made him famous, but they could never endow him with the influence and importance with which they credited him.

They spoiled a rather vain and commonplace man, who was not ill natured or vindictive, but simply conceited and meddlesome.

He believed what he read of himself in the newspapers and wrote a book.

That settled him in the opinion of the men and women of whom he was supposed to be the leader.

When he made his unfortunate statement about the Four Hundred, he incurred the dislike of the people whom he left out and gained nothing by his presumptuous flattery of those to the manner born.

That same summer at Newport he undertook to advise Mrs. Ogden Mills and one or two smart young married women like her how they should give dinners and how they should entertain.

They bitterly resented his interference, and some of them went so far as to strike him off their visiting lists.

Mrs. William Astor was then still in the zenith of her power, and it was upon her that Mr. McAllister was forced to lean for social support.

But he had to give up his subscription picnics, on which he had greatly prided himself, and when he took to writing screeds over his own signature for the daily papers the elect of society were unanimous that he had lost caste and was willing to accept the position in which he found himself.

For the past three years Mr. McAllister's social power has been absolutely nil.

How could it be otherwise when even the last important and influential friend he had—Mrs. William Astor—found her own scepter an awkward thing to handle?

As I wrote about Mrs. Astor some days ago, saying that there was no further chance for a one woman social power in New York, so it is impossible that any one man will ever attempt to usurp the power that was unduly credited to Mr. McAllister.

Even had he not written a book, not invented a "Four Hundred" and not antagonized individuals his social position would have waned just the same and he would have had to give way before the horde just as others have done.

Society will prefer to remember this gentleman as he was at one of his old time picnics at Newport, running about and fussing over the viands and wines, bullying the waiters, flirting with the women, pointing out his turnip patch and whisking his coattails about on the dancing platform.

In those days, before the papers puffed him up, he was amusing, good natured and funny. Everybody could get along with him, and he was nobody's enemy.

Had he died ten years ago society would have been in sackcloth and ashes.

Today all it says is: "Poor fellow! Rather sudden, wasn't it?"—Cholly Knickerbocker in New York Recorder.

INADEQUATE PUNISHMENT.

The Elbe Disaster Calls Attention to Shortcomings of the Law.

One of the lessons of the awful Elbe disaster is the utter inadequacy of the punishment provided by law for the crime which caused the loss of nearly 400 lives, for the violation of the international steering and sailing regulations on the part of the commander of the Crathie was nothing less than a crime.

The direction in which the two ships were sailing makes it clear beyond dispute that the Crathie had the Elbe on her starboard side, and, according to the plain and explicit provisions of the navigation rules, it was the duty of the Crathie to keep clear, to stop or to reverse her engines or pass astern of the Elbe. By the same rules it was the duty of the Elbe to keep her course, as she did. And yet the possible loss of his master's certificate is the only punishment which can be meted out to the four hundredfold homicide, by whose criminal default the unfortunate crew and passengers of the Elbe were consigned to death amid unimaginable and indescribable horrors. Here is certainly a case for an international understanding and for the extension of the jurisdiction of the admiralty courts of maritime nations.—Philadelphia Record.

Speckled Beauties Out of Season.

There has been a movement on foot for some weeks among retail and wholesale fish dealers to stop the illegal sale of trout, which is being made in this city. The law does not go out before April 15, and for weeks trout has been brought to commission merchants in boxes marked smelts or frost fish. These are sold to epicures, who will pay almost any price for things out of season. The dealers complain that when the trout season opens, and dealers display their fish, the wealthier classes will not buy, having tired of these delicacies. Thus does this illegal traffic interfere with legitimate business. It is also stated that a large trout order can be filled with two days' notice, and that they are brought from the New England states.—New York Herald.

They Bore Du Maurier.

The "Trilby" craze has had no funnier outcome than the desire of girls in all parts of the world who think they resemble Du Maurier's heroine to communicate with the author. Mr. du Maurier has received a large number of photographs from young women in this and other countries asking him if, in his opinion, they resemble the real "Trilby."—Philadelphia Ledger.

SHORT LIVED FORTUNES.

How the Millions of the Cressuslike Bonanza Kings Have Dwindled.

While the accumulation of wealth in the hands of a few is an evil that needs to be vigorously combated, there are not lacking indications that it contains within itself the seeds of its own destruction. Families like the Astors, that fasten themselves like abelones on a single spot and suck out the resources of a community from generation to generation, are happily rare, and the conditions that permit them to subsist may be easily altered by legislation. The difficulty of maintaining great aggregations of capital intact under ordinary circumstances has been strikingly illustrated in San Francisco.

A few years ago, among many large accumulations of wealth in this town, eight stupendous fortunes stood conspicuously pre-eminent—the four railroad fortunes of Stanford, Huntington, Crocker and Hopkins and the four bonanza fortunes of Flood, O'Brien, Mackay and Fair. The wildest ideas prevailed concerning the size of these hoards. Stanford and Huntington were commonly supposed to be worth at least $100,000,000 apiece. At one time Mackay was called the richest man in the world, and his wealth was figured as high as $600,000,000. This estimate was based on the reasonable idea of taking the dividends on his mining stocks as the interest on a capital sufficient to produce such returns at ordinary rates and perhaps allowing for a geometrical increase on the previously observed scale.

Of these huge fortunes only that of Huntington remains undiminished in the original hands. Mackay is living, but his wealth, actual and reputed, has shrunk until he sometimes finds it hard to lay his hands at short notice on $3,000,000 or $4,000,000 in ready cash. The Stanford estate has been generously dedicated to public uses. The Crocker estate has to support several families and several expensive establishments. The Hopkins estate is probably smaller now than when Mark Hopkins died. Flood and O'Brien saw their wealth diminish to ordinary proportions before their death, and their heirs are not conspicuous now among multimillionaires. The shrewdest and hardest of the bonanza kings has just died, and his wealth will be divided into several parts in any case and may be all swallowed up by the legal talent that has displayed such absorbent ability in the Jessup and Blythe cases.

On the whole, the American atmosphere, favorable as it is to the accumulation of vast fortunes, does not appear particularly to promote their perpetuity.—San Francisco Examiner.

DELUGED WITH STAMPS.

A Flood of Sympathy Brought Out by "Chain Letters" That Is Wasted.

Some time ago Miss Edna Brown, a cripple of Kanesville, Ills., hearing that some hospital would treat her if she gave it 1,000,000 canceled postage stamps, wrote to three persons, requesting that each send ten stamps and also write to three persons, making a similar request of each, their correspondents to send the stamps and write letters, and so on until the fiftieth link in the chain should be forged. The plan was carried out, and the result has astonished Miss Brown. When her letters first began to arrive, they were only a few, but they increased gradually in number until it fairly rained letters.

The chain is not yet half complete, but Miss Brown's mail now consists of from 8,000 to 10,000 letters a day. She passed the 3 000,000 mark long ago, and there seems no possible way of stopping the avalanche. And the worst of it is that, although thousands of dollars have been expended in postage out of sympathy for her, yet it all does no good whatever, as no medical institute can be found that wants a million stamps. The only one who is making anything out of the great scheme is Uncle Sam, whose income has been increased $200 to $300 a day.—Exchange.

The Burned Wingate House.

Another link to the earlier history of this country has gone through the destruction by fire of the historic Wingate house at Stratham, N. H. It was originally the home of Payne Wingate, who was United States senator for New Hampshire at the time of the Washington inauguration. The late Robert C. Winthrop used to tell of his visiting Mr. Wingate in 1836, when the senator was almost 100 years old and was at that time the oldest living graduate of Harvard college. The college was then celebrating its two hundredth anniversary, and Mr. Winthrop went up to Stratham to get some new facts regarding the early history of the institution. Among other things Mr. Wingate told him of his dining with Washington in New York on April 30, 1779, the day of the president's inauguration. The house was owned last by the Hon. J. C. A. Wingate, grandson of the old senator, who has served with distinction, especially in the diplomatic service in China.—Independent.

The Death Penalty In Kansas.

The criminal code of Kansas provides for the infliction of the death penalty, but it guards it with such peculiar provisions as to make it practically inoperative. The penalty cannot be inflicted except by the immediate order of the governor of the state, given at his discretion. There are now in the state penitentiaries over 200 persons under sentence of death. They are liable to be hanged any day under an order from the governor. But since the law was passed no governor has ever ordered a hanging.—Chicago Tribune.

The New Woman's Cigarette.

The latest thing in the cigarette of the New York fashionable woman is to have it made to order, with her name and address thereon, so far has she strayed from the secrecy with which a few years ago she began to smoke.—New York Journal.

INHUMANITY OF THE LAW.

An Englishman Driven to Death by Harsh Legal Machinery.

I make no apology for giving prominence above events of so called importance to a simple little story, which I have no doubt will arouse emotions in American hearts that it has failed to excite in this country. Its significance indeed lies in the fact that it formed the subject of a small newspaper paragraph here without attracting any public interest. It is merely a record of the operation of the inexorable machinery of the English law as applied to an obscure individual named Henry Grainger, living in Sunderland.

Mr. Grainger had a large family and had been out of work for several months. Privation had undermined his health, and the household had become destitute. Then the law stepped in and summoned the unfortunate father before a magistrate for failing to send his children to school. He pleaded that he was unable to clothe and feed them so that they could appear in public. The wise judge ordered the father to pay a fine of a few shillings. The unhappy man explained that he had not a penny. Outraged law committed him to the county jail for three days. He was duly conveyed to prison at Durham, and when his term had expired was turned, penniless and infirm, into the bitter cold, driving storm. He tried to walk to his home, 14 miles away, managed to get half the distance and then crawled at night into an empty limekiln for shelter. Somebody happened to find him there in the morning half frozen and almost dead. The law again supplied him with a conveyance to the workhouse and probably would have done more for him but he was ungrateful enough to die as soon as he reached its sheltering doors. His death had been rather irregular, so the law furnished a jury which carefully considered his fate.

If there had been the slightest legal responsibility for his death on the part of any person or authority the jury would not have failed to express its condemnation, for English coroners' juries are always severe in dealing with any illegality. It is quite plain that not a whit of legal blame attached to anybody, so the verdict was, "Death from exposure." That is all, save perhaps that next week, if the hungry orphans still fail to attend school, the law may step in and deal precisely in the same way with Grainger's widow. Thus does England maintain her proud position in the van of educated nations. She still holds meetings which denounce with self righteous indignation the lawless treatment of murderers by American mobs. No protest has yet been heard against such tortures and tragedies as I have described, and which the law of England approves, if it does not prescribe.—New York Sun's London Letter.

THE CZAR'S GIFT.

A Pathetic Story of His Tender Regard For the Wishes of the Empress.

A pathetic story comes from Russia about the last present received by the dowager empress from the late czar. Last summer the czar and empress visited a great shop in St. Petersburg to buy jewels for their son's future bride. The empress greatly admired a beautiful bracelet and told the czar that she wished to possess it. On their return one of the serious attacks to which he was subject came upon him, and the empress forgot the bracelet. The czar died, and to the empress in the early days of her widowhood came Nov. 14, the first birthday she must pass alone. On her other birthdays the czar had been wont to place a bouquet in the morning room of the empress. Inside the flowers was always folded some rich rare gift, chosen months beforehand.

The empress had avoided the room as too full of painful memories, but this morning, the morning of his wedding day, Nicholas requested his mother to go there as a favor to him. The first thing she saw was the bouquet in the usual place, and inside the flowers was a case fastened and sealed by the czar's own hands. It contained the bracelet. He had ordered it on the same day that the empress saw it, and on his deathbed had given instructions for the birthday gift, bidding his son to be near to comfort her when she received it.

Revival of the Curfew Bell.

There is to be a revival of the curfew in Canada, and if it prove successful in the cities and towns of that Dominion, it is not unlikely that it may be used in some parts of the United States, writes John Gilmer Speed, in The Ladies' Home Journal. The law which has been enacted by the legislatures of Quebec and Ontario was drafted by the Society For the Protection of Women and Children and provides that the municipal councils in cities, towns and incorporated villages shall have power to pass bylaws for the regulation of the time after which children shall not be in the streets at night without proper guardianship. The law also provides that these councils shall cause a bell to be rung at or near the time appointed, as a warning, to be called the curfew bell, after which the children so required to be at their homes or off the streets shall be liable to be warned by any constable or police officer to go home.

Wealth With a J.

The St. Louis Republic asks: "Is the homely little crooked letter 'J' really a mascot, or is it only a coincidence that it is to be found in the given or Christian names of so many millionaires? The recent death of 'J.' G. Fair has suggested the following compilation of millionaires' names which contain the luck bestowing letter: J. D. Rockefeller, J. J. Astor, Jay Gould, John M. Sears, J. S. Morgan, J. P. Morgan, J. B. Haggin, J. W. Garret, J. G. Fair, John Wanamaker, J. W. Mackay, J. G. Fisot, J. M. Constable, John T. Martin and John Arbuckle. None of the above is rated at less than $10,000,000, and several are from six to ten times that sum."

FACT AND FANCY.

BY JEDWIN NEBWAME.

The press seems to have lost all the chivalry that should mark its utterances. The writer of "Prattle" in the Examiner is paid to amuse the readers thereof by making little of the endeavors of woman to enter a larger sphere of action. Now, this same paper sees fit to head an item of news in the following manner: "Budd's Female Secretary." Polite, courteous and laughable, is it not? In conversation we refer to women as females; we speak of our lady friends as females. The above heading is refined, delicate and decent. It would have been vulgar to have said, "Budd's Lady Secretary." It would have jarred on the nerves of Rainey and Crimmens to have used another expression, such as "A Lady Secretary to Governor Budd."

The Legislature that has recently breathed its last was a disgrace to our State. Beneath the dome of our Capitol votes have been bought and sold. It is not human, not natural, to question the truth of this statement. Men who have been in Sacramento for the past few months and who have had no business interests dependent on the will of our Assemblymen and Senators declare it to be their firm conviction that votes have been sold. Common report says so; we believe it; one of the members has made the accusation on the floor of the Senate Chamber and has sworn to it. Does any one doubt it?

Believing in the truth of the above statements what is our duty? Are we to idly sit or jestingly talk, or hopelessly lament? If your farm hand betrays your interests what do you do? If he has stolen from you do you not invoke the law? Legislators are servants of the public, whose certificates of election are powers of attorney which command them to render certain and stated services to the public. If they are dishonest the law is at hand. But who is to file the complaint? Manifestly the great political parties should hold their representatives to a strict accounting for their actions. No honest Legislator will find difficulty in explaining his vote, but there are many I fear who have voted honestly and who do not understand the measures they have supported or opposed. Men cannot spend their time in saloons or at fat fights and still be able to intelligently discuss bills whose length in some instances is greater than that of the Federal Constitution. The State Central Committees should hold the Legislators to strict accounting. But they will not do it. The success of the party would not permit them to act from noble motives. It would seem to show poor generalship to hold a Senator responsible for some act which favored the party, but which was against the interests of the people. The State Central Committees are not made of that kind of stuff—at present they are not.

The great political parties are organized and it is for this reason that they are great and so are in position to act effectively. (The righteous sentiment of a community is seldom organized save in times of public calamity and to our "ages drowsy blood" nothing short of foreign invasion or social upheaval is calamitous) Then why do not the Central Committees, County and State make an attempt to do something? I can see but two answers. Either they are corrupt or they do not realize their duty. If the latter is the fact the recent disclosures ought to make their line of action plain. If corruption is the cause it is the duty of every citizen of the State to attend the primaries of his party and make his influence felt for the betterment of his party. The primary is the root of the party, the Committees are the trunk and branches, the Assemblymen, Senators and public officers are the blossoms and the legislation is the fruit. If the root be rotten the trunk, branches, blossoms and fruit will also be rotten. The figure is not beautiful, but it is suggestive.

There is a kind of "touch me not" sentiment abroad in the land which is utterly base. The man who is too good to attend the primary is too good for the church; he is unpatriotic. Citizenship imposes duties and the main cause of our corrupt legislation lies in the fact that citizens do not perform their duty. A man may live upon a farm and not plow his fields nor prune his trees, but he will reap his reward in a forced sale. So with the State. You may live in it, but if you are not watchful the liberties you once enjoyed will take wings. Drink of the wisdom of the past. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

If the best element attends the primary good delegates will be sent to the conventions and if good men are in the convention we will have good committees. Thus will the righteous sentiment in the State become organized and organized right, or righteousness is a mighty lever. It is evident that a convention representing the best interests in the county or State is not likely to nominate bad men for the responsible offices.

GOVERNOR BUDD last Tuesday signed the bill which grants to the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railroad a lease to fifty acres of the water front of that city for depot purposes.

LI HUNG CHANG, the Chinese Peace Envoy, was shot and seriously wounded in the streets of Shimonoseke, Japan, while returning from his lodgings after attending a peace conference. His assailant was a young Japanese fanatic. As the Japanese Government had guaranteed the wounded man protection while within her borders his attempted assassination will work a great injury to that country among European nations, most of whom are already jealous of her phenomenal conquests in China.

WALTER T. BLAKE, city editor of the Stockton Independent, was shot and dangerously wounded in the back on Sunday night last at 11:30 o'clock, by a foot-pad, almost in front of the New Montgomery street entrance to the Palace and Grand Hotels, San Francisco. His assailant escaped and as usual the police of that city are at sea in their efforts to ferret out the would-be murderer. It has come to a pretty pass when a man cannot venture along the most populous and crowded thoroughfares of the metropolis of an evening without being waylaid and shot down.

The auction sale held at the Engelbert residence last Wednesday was a great success. J. P. Weems auctioned the household goods off and proved himself to be an adept at the business. Jimmy kept those present in good humor by his quaint sayings, with the result that frying pans, tin pots and kettles went off like hot cakes at more than their original cost.

In the fall of 1893 a son of Mr. T. A. McFarland, a prominent merchant of Live Oak, Sutter county, Cal., was taken with a very heavy cold. The pains in his chest were so severe that he had spasms and was threatened with pneumonia. His father gave him several large doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which broke up the cough and cured him. Mr. McFarland says whenever his children have croup he invariably gives them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and it always cures them. He considers it the best cough remedy in the market. For sale by all dealers.

Mrs. J. S. Young and daughter Miss Maud, while out driving last Tuesday evening had a narrow escape. The team was a spirited one and while trotting along the road near Embarcadero at a brisk pace the bit on the off horse broke and rendered the lines perfectly useless in handling the animals. For a few seconds it seemed as though there would be a serious runaway. Mrs. Young, however, with rare presence of mind talked quietly to the animals and with the assistance of Rev. Mr. Robins, who was passing at the time, succeeded in bringing them to a standstill.

The publisher of a newspaper has one thing to sell and one thing to rent. He has the newspaper to sell and the space in its columns to rent. Can any one inform us why he should be expected to give away either one or the other? He can do so if he chooses and he does, as a matter of practical fact, furnish a great deal of space rent free. But it does not follow that he ought to be expected to do so. It ought to be recognized as a contribution exactly as would the giving away of sugar or coffee by the groceryman. The existence of a newspaper depends as much on the rent of its space and the sale of its paper as the merchant's success depends on selling his goods instead of giving them away.—Ex.

The Sonoma House is a first-class house in every respect. *

RAFFLES MUST GO.

So Says District Attorney Seawell.

No More Music Boxes and Bicycles for Five Cents.

The raffle craze, which has been raging in Petaluma and Santa Rosa the past few months, and which recently struck Sonoma, will soon be a thing of the past. The scheme was worked in this way. In each of a hundred or a hundred and fifty little envelopes was placed a number from 1 to 150. The party taking a chance picked out an envelope and opened it. If the number was 1, 2, 3, 4 or 5 his investment cost him five cents or less. If he was unlucky and happened to get an envelope containing a larger number, say 50, he paid 50 cents; if 100 he paid $1.00 and so on. When the drawing came off the numbers sold to investors were duplicated and the lucky holder would find himself the possessor of a suit of clothes, a bicycle or a music box for an investment of 1 cent up to $1.50.

Santa Rosa, like all other towns, has its kickers. One of these the other day called the attention of the District Attorney to the lottery scheme and that official consulted the statutes in regard to the matter with the result that he has notified the officers throughout the county to arrest all parties engaged in getting up raffles by the above method, as it is against the law.

Trout Fishing.

The trout season opens next Monday and in anticipation of sport ahead local anglers are getting ready to visit the various trout streams in this valley, of which there are twelve or fifteen. Fishing promises to be good this season and should to-morrow and Monday be clear and warm some fine catches will be made on the latter day. For several years past the giant powder fiends have been getting in their work in Sonoma Creek and several of its small tributary streams, with the result that few fish are caught in the large pools after the season has been open two or three months. The parties addicted to this reprehensible practice are known and traps have been set the past year to catch them in the act and have them prosecuted, but so far without success. This practice, it is said, is only indulged in by two or three parties in this valley.

Death of Harmon Brockman.

Harmon Brockman, a pioneer of Sonoma Valley, died in San Francisco, last Wednesday evening, whither he had went for medical treatment. The deceased had long been a sufferer from a cancer, which made its appearance on his lower lip years ago and which finally caused his death. Mr. Brockman was the brother of the late Israel Brockman, the first Sheriff of Sonoma county. He was also the uncle of John M. Hendley of Glen Ellen. He was a native of Missouri and aged 59 years.

The remains of deceased were brought to Sonoma yesterday and interred in Valley Cemetery.

The Rain.

The rain which fell last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday was not needed in this valley and while probably it will do more good than harm, it has retarded the cultivation of many vineyards and orchards. This will be offset by the benefit to hay, grain and feed for stock. The precipitation Tuesday and Wednesday, according to United States Signal Officer Hall's gauge, was 1.18 inches. The rainfall the past month has been within a fraction of three inches. So far the precipitation for the season has been 40 inches.

Church Notice.

Sunday (to-morrow) morning the pastor of the Methodist church will preach a special sermon on "After Death—What?" All those who have misgivings about the future are especially invited. At 7:30 in the evening the pastor will give another of his patriotic lectures, The subject will be "The Present State of the Country and its Lessons." Men and women of all parties and creed are invited to hear this lecture.

Bicycle Race Track.

A petition, numerously signed, will be presented to the City Trustees at their regular meeting next Wednesday evening praying that body to permit the Sonoma Bicycle Club the privilege of constructing a 16-foot bicycle race track around the Plaza for the use of the members of the club and the public in general.

Bicycle vs. Horse.

Frank Weems, the Sonoma bicyclist, is training for his prospective race with Pink Eye Prince. Frank has great confidence in his propelling power and expects to enter the race in the lead, which position he hopes to maintain to a finish.

GLEN ELLEN.

Considerable rain fell here yesterday.

Dr. McCauley who located here some time ago has removed to Oregon.

Chas. Poppe has been improving the front of his store and Postoffice the past week.

The red spider, a pest to trees and vines, has made its appearance on some of the farms in this vicinity.

Dr. C. C. O'Donnell came up from San Francisco last Tuesday and will remain a few days on his farm.

The Southern Pacific train makes daily trips from Melitta loaded with basalt blocks consigned to San Francisco.

M. F. Turley, who has suffered untold agony from a toothache had the troublesome molar yanked out at Sonoma last Tuesday.

The San Francisco and North Pacific Railway Company are making some extensive improvements on their depot grounds at this place.

Quite a number of carpenters and contractors at the Home for Feeble Minded left this week, having completed their labors at the above place.

REMINGTON.

Glen Ellen, March 21, 1895.

Captain Stofen.

Capt. P. N. Stofen, ex-County Treasurer, has secured a good position under the United States Government at Lime Point near San Francisco. Congress recently made a considerable appropriation for the construction of fortifications there and Captain Stofen has been appointed Superintendent of a portion of the work. He entered upon his new duties last week. One of the things that will be done by the Government at Lime Point will be placing in position of the big rifle which came from the East a few days ago.

Daring Robbery.

Another daring robbery was committed in Santa Rosa at 10:30 o'clock Sunday evening. Two masked men entered Cantrell's saloon and at the point of pistols held up Wm. Beckner, the barkeeper, and two of his friends who happened to be present. One robber commanded the men to throw up their hands and as soon as the order was obeyed his masked companion hastily went behind the bar and seizing the till secured about $100. He then rejoined his pal and together they backed out of the saloon under cover of their revolvers and made good their escape.

For tired eyes—Take a cup brim full of water. Add sufficient salt to be just perceptible to the taste. Hold your eyes to the water so that your lashes touch it, then wink once and the eyes will be suffused. Do not wipe them. This so refreshens the eyes that they feel like a new pair. Do not forget the good old rule. As soon as you "feel your eyes" stop using them.

Suicide.

The dead body of an Austrian named Caspar Aman was found hanging to the rafters of a rear porch on the Fisher place, four miles northwest of Santa Rosa, last Sunday morning. Aman had been living on the place for some time past and was despondent on account of ill-health. When discovered the suicide's legs were bent and his feet touched the floor of the porch, which proved that it was a determined suicide as, had he so desired, he could easily have prevented strangulation by standing upon his feet. He had carefully tied a handkerchief around his neck to prevent the rope from cutting into the flesh.

Mr. Ed. Wegner desires us to publish the following extract from a letter of Chas. M. Gutfeld, of Reedley, Fresno Co., Cal., as he handles the remedy referred to and wants his customers to know what a splendid medicine it is:

"It is with pleasure I tell you that by one day's use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy I was relieved of a very severe cold. My head was completely stopped up and I could not sleep at night. I can recommend this remedy." A cold nearly always starts in the head and afterwards extends to the throat and lungs. By using this remedy freely as soon as the cold has been contracted it will check the cold at once and prevent it from extending to the lungs.

HER OTHER SIDE.

Extremely Radical Sentiments Charged to Hetty Green.

She is a motherly soul, this Mrs. Hetty Green. She has a good, kind heart, even if she is the richest woman in America.

She has a tendency to distrust people on first acquaintance, but when one gets to know her she is a cheery creature, and her worn face brightens up, her eyes glisten, and she talks vivaciously.

She has a weakness for children and is always trying, and trying with success, to make friends of them.

The people who know her well, and it is significant that a great many poor people know her well, will tell you that Hetty Green is eccentric and whimsical, but that, after all, they like her. She is interesting.

Even a person who did not know who she was would bestow a second glance upon this unfashionably clad and often shabby woman if she passed by in a crowd.

"The poor have no chance in this country. No wonder anarchists and socialists are so numerous. The longer we live the more discontented we all get, and no wonder too. Some blame the rich, but all the rich are not to blame."

Thus spoke Mrs. Green when the Brooklyn strike was at its height. It was a general conversation, and she was taking her share in it. The talk had drifted from the particulars of the case to the generalities it involved, and Mrs. Green was more radical than any one.

"But the law must be upheld," remarked one.

"The law must be upheld, must it?" repeated the woman of millions scornfully. "Then why don't they begin at the right end? Who begins to break the law? The great railroad magnates. There is Huntington. He and his railroads and the men about him have been grinding wealth out of the poor for years and years and defying the authorities. But the militia are never sent against him. When some poor starving fellows get desperate and cars don't run, how quickly they send the troops! I will say, though, that the boys in the militia are not to blame. Their sympathies are always with the strikers. But what can they do? They must obey orders."

"How would you remedy these things?"

"How? Make these railroad magnates obey the law or put them in prison. Let the poor man break the law and see how soon he gets into jail."—Boston Herald.

A NOTABLE KENTUCKIAN.

Extraordinary Obituary Tribute to the Late Alamander Martin of Lackey.

Died, at the home of his brother, near this place, on Jan. 16, Alamander Martin, in the seventy-ninth year of his age. He was born in Ohio. Came with his parents to Kentucky at an early age. He was well beloved by all who knew him. He was a model in the way of economy, industry and honesty. His voice will no more be heard by his many relatives whom he so much loved and so faithfully served during sickness. We will greatly miss him, but pray the Lord to reconcile us to this sad bereavement, knowing that our loss in his eternal gain. His funeral services were attended by the Rev. William Cook, and a sermon was preached from the book of God, after which a large concourse of people followed his remains to their last resting place until called forth on the resurrection morn. The following is a short sketch of his life:

During Mr. Martin's early life
The country was full of witches,
He carried a gun and butcher knife
And wore the leather breeches.

But as time advanced
He changed his pants,
Yet still preferred the leather.
He would often tell
The way they would smell
In time of rainy weather.

He was a man of iron nerve,
A voice loud and piercing.
His head was gray, his spine curved,
Before he quit his cursing.

His latter days were days of peace,
A change in disposition.
As strength gave way grace increased
And saved him from perdition.

Now he sails on Zion's ship,
No more pains from his poor old hip.
He is done with troubles here below
And gone where all good mortals go.

—Catlettsburg Democrat.

Climb of the Pencil.

A new fashion that is just beginning to grow in vogue is that of writing letters in pencil rather than with pen and ink, and when once fairly established it is doubtful whether anything but legal documents and business papers that must be preserved will ever be prepared in the old style. Letters are generally shorter nowadays than they formerly were and more hastily written, more frequent and seldom worth keeping for any length of time. They are not the elaborate efforts of bygone days, that were often cherished for their intrinsic worth. The pencil, which is far more convenient than the pen, is therefore taking its place in the great mass of casual correspondence. — Kansas City Times.

The Poor Profited.

A novel scheme to provide bread for the poor was recently successfully tested in Flint, Mich. There were 150 competitors among the ladies of the city to see who could bake the best loaf, each contestant to make three loaves, the winner to receive a valuable prize and the bread to be given to the poor. The winner of the contest was the wife of the mayor.

A Very Popular Loan.

"It's all very well to talk about issuing bonds of $10 each," remarked Mr. Dukane, "but that is not the way to induce women to buy."

"What would you advise?" asked Mr. Gaswell.

"Let Secretary Carlisle advertise the bonds at $9.98, marked down from $10."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

HEIRESSES TO $6,000 WANTED.

If They Do Not Come Forward, the State Will Get the Property.

Somewhere out in McHenry county, Ills., unless they have died or moved away, are two young women who have inherited property in this city which will net them at least $6,000. So far the search, which has been made by several lawyers, has failed to reveal their whereabouts, and if they do not soon come forward the property will escheat to the state.

The name of the two heiresses was Ferris, and the property was left by their grandaunt, Elise Ferris Hale, who was a sort of Hetty Green on a small scale. She came to New York from Ireland when a young girl and married here. Her husband had accumulated nothing at the time of his death. Both before and after that event, however, Mrs. Hale exhibited a genius for speculation, and her operations in Wall street yielded a snug little fortune. Seven years ago Mrs. Hale went back to Ireland to visit her nephew and other relatives. While there she became ill and died soon after in a hospital in Dublin.

She left no will, and her nearest relatives were two nephews, one of whom lived in Ireland and the other in New Zealand. A third nephew, named Andrew Ferris, had come to the United States and had settled in Sweetwater, Nev. He became interested in mining there and married the sister of one of his business associates. Her name is not known. Two daughters were born, and while they were still children the mother died, and very soon afterward the father. The little girls were sent to live with their grandmother in Illinois. So much the lawyers have been able to learn about the heiresses, but as to what became of them afterward they are still in ignorance.

When Mrs. Hale's estate came to be settled up, all the personal property she had, amounting to about $6,000 in stocks and bonds, was turned over to the nephews in Ireland and New Zealand. The grandnieces, even if found, were not closely enough related to inherit personal property. On the other hand, they were the only ones who could inherit the real property, because of the law in this country against such property passing to aliens.

Mrs. Hale's real property consisted of a tenement house in East Thirty-fourth street, near First avenue. A mortgage for $6,000 upon it is held by the Institution For Savings of Merchants' Clerks. When the owner died and no heir to the property could be found, Secretary Lawrence of the bank was appointed receiver for the property. He collected rents and paid the taxes, so that there was no increase in the debt to the bank. Upon Mr. Lawrence's death, a few months ago, the mortgage was foreclosed, and the tenement was advertised for sale. It was knocked down to Judge Fitzsimons of the city court for $12,000, which was sufficient to meet the amount due on the mortgage and to leave a balance of about $6,000. But Judge Fitzsimons, in examining the title, ran across the claim of the two vanished heiresses and decided he didn't want the property in the circumstances. Consequently the bank is still collecting the rent and standing pat.

All the parties concerned are anxious to have the estate settled up, but the two heiresses remain hidden from view. The presumption in law is that a person not heard from in seven years is dead, and before long the attorney general will have a chance to institute proceedings for the settlement of the mortgage and the reversion of the net proceeds to the state.—New York Sun.

A BUSHEL OF ONIONS.

An Important Present Question That Is Agitating Massachusetts Farmers.

Many a horny handed granger dwelling in bailiwicks just beyond our commonwealth's borders has been making "easy money" in the onion trade for months past at the expense of divers tillers of Massachusetts soil. It all happens as the result of a "bull" made by the legislature of 1894, which solemnly decreed that the standard weight of a bushel of onions in Massachusetts should be 57 pounds, while in nearly every other state the legal heft thereof is fixed at 52 pounds.

For a good many moons farmers from York state, little Rhody or the land of steady habits have made it their pleasant and profitable business to cross the Massachusetts boundary line, buy a 57 pound bushel of onions here and sell out in their home market at a profit of five pounds saved on the bushel. What wonder that the yeomanry of our Massachusetts border towns have risen in their might and demanded that the costly blunder made at the statehouse last year shall be speedily rectified!—Boston Globe.

Long Pastorate In Chicago Ended.

Universal regret is expressed that the Rev. Dr. Clinton Locke is compelled by the loss of his vocal powers to retire from the rectorship of Grace Episcopal church, which he has held for the last 36 years. This is a longer period than any other Protestant clergyman in Chicago has been the pastor of the same congregation. Dr. Locke's ministry has been distinguished by great ability in the pulpit and in the discharge of church duty, by dignity and elevation of conduct, by Christian purity and simplicity of character and by many graces of life. He is held in affectionate regard by the members of his late flock, and it is understood that they will make liberal provision for his support and maintenance during the remainder of his life.—Chicago Herald.

Surrender Surrenders.

"Surrender" has finally been wiped off the map of the United States that Appomattox might be restored to its place in history along with Philippi and Waterloo. Now let somebody in the postoffice department go into a secluded place and whisper what he thinks of himself.—New York World.
